"THE ANGLE LAMP"

THE LIGHT THAT NEVER FAILS.
It seems almost incredible that any lamp could be good enough to take the place of electricity on even terms, yet such is the case with the ANGLE LAMP. All over the Islands people are throwing away their old lamps and replacing them with this lamp, not merely because it costs about one-tenth as much to maintain (cost is no object to some people) but, beside being infinitely cheaper, it is more brilliant and more reliable in the bargain. It is a revelation to every one who uses it, and simply demonstrates that the old-fashioned lamp was a barbarous contrivance. THE ANGLE LAMP never smokes, smells or gives any trouble. It is lighted and extinguished as easily as gas, and is the idea light from every standpoint. We carry these lamps from $1.50 up.

MOANA MAGNIFICENT IN TASTEFUL LUXURY

Managing Director J. G. Rothwell of the Moana hotel chose a most excellent way of throwing open the doors of that elegantly appointed hostelry at Wal-kiki by inviting the members of the press of Honolulu to the "first view" and a banquet in connection therewith.
The occasion was one that will long be remembered by everyone present. Besides the representatives of the English speaking newspapers of the city, there were present a number of specially invited guests. All these met at the Automobile stables on King street at a given time and were treated to a speedy run to the Moana hotel.

The first thing that struck the guests of Mr. Rothwell and the hotel, was the brilliance of lighting. The hotel throughout is furnished with hundreds of incandescent lights installed by the Oceanic Gas & Electric Co., but the most beautiful part of the whole lighting is to be found at the very top of the building where the roof garden is lighted at night by a mass of red, white and blue lights.

Upon the arrival of all the guests at the hotel, Mr. Rothwell, the managing director, Mr. Smith the manager and Robert Scott, the night clerk, divided them up into parties and took them through the hotel up to the elevator to the very top, where a roof garden, supplied with comfortable chairs, affords a view of the ocean, the mountains and the surrounding country; through the four floors of rooms, elegantly furnished with furniture of the most approved woods and carpets of colors whose warmth of color at once produces a feeling of comfort and rest; into the spacious bath rooms and out upon the broad piazzas where at any time of the day or night, no matter how high the temperature, one may get a cool breeze and through the broad hallways upon the carpets of which it is a pleasure to walk.

To attempt to describe the beauty of the furnishings of the rooms and the comforts which are to be seen on every hand would be folly. The very best way to see Moana hotel is to go out.
No description would give an adequate idea of what is to be seen there.

The first floor is of course devoted to the offices, the reception rooms, the billiard rooms, the cafe and other rooms that are always to be found on the first floor of a well appointed hotel.

The guests having finished their view of the hotel proper, went to the electric lighting plant and laundry across the way, where the machinery not in operation, was started up for the benefit of the guests. The culinary department with its cold storage plant, its storerooms and other important factors was also visited by the guests.

The last place on the program to be viewed by the guests was the great dining hall in that portion of the hotel which runs to the very water's edge.

The doors of this place were thrown open at 8 o'clock and, immediately this was done, an orchestra began a most charming march, the guests going to seated around a rectangular table in their places to the catchy time. Once in the middle of the hall, a string of waiters in dress suits, came marching into the room and the good things were set upon the tables. Like the remainder of the hotel, the dining hall beggars description. The cooking was most delicious, and every dish as it came on the table, was served up in a style that has never been seen in Honolulu before. Truly, it was a pleasure to eat at such a table. It was not until 11 o'clock that the banquet was finished and then began the speeches of the evening and the passing of bouquets back and forth.

Mr. Rothwell as managing director, is he most heartily congratulated on the Moana hotel and on his success in securing the services of Mr. Smith who is not only a most excellent manager but a good fellow who will certainly make the hotel a most popular place.

Among the guests of the evening were the following: J. A. McCandless, Andrew Brown, Theodore Lansing, Commodore Beckley, A. E. Kaeser, W.
R. Farrington, F. J. Cross, Robert Catton, John Neill, Lewis Gear, O. G.
